

Home > Travel > Vacation Starter: Hot Deals on Vacations

Aboard a floating fortress of solitude in the Sea of Cortes

By Anne Z. Cooke and Steve Haggerty
McClatchy-Tribune News Service
8:20 a.m. EDT, October 14, 2013

SAN EVARISTA, Mexico Rising at dawn to catch the sunrise, cruise passengers nursing coffee cups watched as the Safari Endeavour glided past the Baja Peninsula's ragged coast. As the rays played over the cliffs, each thumb-shaped cove and crescent beach came into view for a minute or two, then slid out of sight, disappearing astern.

Fifty yards off the starboard bow, a whale surfaced to breathe, blowing an airy spray of mist and leaving a widening circle of ripples. On the port side, a squawking band of sea gulls hovered over a rocky islet shared by a colony of croaking sea lions.

They and the Endeavour were the only signs of life, or so it seemed to this first-time visitor to the Sea of Cortes, the 700 mile-long finger of ocean separating the Baja California Peninsula from the Mexican mainland. (It's also known as the Sea of Cortez, Gulf of California, and Vermilion Sea, in addition to its various Spanish-language names.)

Topics

- Waterway and Maritime Transportation
- Cruises
- Tourism and Leisure

See more topics »

View/Submit Comments for this story

In nearly a week on the ship, touring at sea and on land, we'd spotted three of the seven whale species that frequent the region, part of the abundant stew of marine residents, including dolphins, green turtles, mobula rays and dozens of birds. We'd walked through a tiny fishing village. Hiked the narrow trails to dusty cliff-top ridges. Snorkeled in glass-clear coves. But except for a brief glimpse of two small sailboats, we'd had the lonely Sea of Cortes all to ourselves.

Behind us on the bridge, Capt. Jill Russell, the Endeavour's 40-something skipper, was in her element, peering through binoculars and reading weather signs in the clouds. A chunky dynamo with energy to burn and a hands-on approach to management, she checked the wind, wondering if the day's planned expedition should be canceled.

Button-holed by a photographer who asked where the ship was heading, she was ready with a snappy come-back. "I don't know," she answered, pausing for comic effect. Then she grinned. "But I'll know when we get there."

A few of the passengers, mostly cruise veterans expecting an orderly progression of ports and tours, suddenly felt unmoored. "Now what?" asked a retired lawyer from Maryland. "Can they change the route just like that?"

But the officers on the bridge, watching the whitecaps smacking against the bow, knew what to expect. Captain Jill, as they called her, would wait and watch, then decide.

One thing was certain. The 86-passenger Endeavour, an Un-Cruise Adventures ship, was a solo act. At the present, only Holland America and Carnival sail anywhere close by, and that with one ship each, calling only a larger towns with port facilities: La Paz, Loreto and San Jose del Cabo on the Peninsula, and Topolobampo and Guaymas on mainland Mexico's Pacific coast.

A cruise third cruise vessel, Lindblad Expedition's 62-passenger Sea Bird, also sails here in January and February, exploring Baja's virgin beaches. But only Un-Cruise Adventures goes off the grid, leading shore expeditions to deserted bays and coves "in country," places like Ensenada Grande, Bahia Aqua Verde, Espiritu Santo and El Cardonal.

Top Discussions

UPDATE: Newport News Police investigating crash that hospitalized woman, infant in critical condition

1 Comment

Craigslist poster says black trick-or-treaters not welcome

10 Comments

Teen's mistaken release in Hampton murder case spills into two sheriff's office races

10 Comments

Virginia Tech bumbles its way to 34-27 loss at Boston College

5 Comments

York seek two in food stamp card theft

2 Comments

View/Submit Comments for this story

Deal Watch

This Week's Hot Deals

We'd expected to spend that day on shore, wandering along the beach, looking for shells and driftwood, snorkeling among the rocks, looking for angelfish, emerald wrasse, sea horses and even sea turtles. Some passengers planned to kayak across the bay; the Endeavour's techno-savvy, storage-and-launch rack (nicknamed the "pickle fork") lowers the 20 two-man kayaks to the water level for easy loading. Other passengers had signed up for the guided hike through the brush-and cactus forest that looks like a desert but isn't.

"We'll be exploring what scientists call a "low elevation deciduously-treed jungle," promised Naturalist and hike leader Paulino Perez during the previous evening's slide show. But with choppy seas and heavy surf, beach landings were put on hold.

So I stood by the rail instead, searching for leviathans. Sperm whales and grey whales, humpbacks and blues, even fin whales and giant whale sharks frolic in these protected blue waters, "the world's aquarium," according to marine biologist and diver Jacques Cousteau, who labeled the region the "Galapagos of North America."

Idling near the rocky pinnacles called Los Islotes we spotted pods of dolphins, sea lion colonies sunning, and brown pelicans and blue-footed boobies jockeying for sunny perches. But the week's highlight was the shore tour to Magdalena Bay, on Baja's Pacific Coast, to see the migrating grey whales.

"Tomorrow we're heading for the historic village of Loreto, where you'll have two options," said Expedition Leader Mark Hopkins. "You can spend the day there, touring the old Mission church, or shopping. Or you can join the bus tour to Magdalena Bay on the Peninsula's Pacific Coast, to see where the migrating grey whales spend the winter months. They come in February and March to breed and give birth," he said. An obvious choice," I thought, signing up for Magdalena Bay.

The drive WAS long, two hours on a continuously winding road. But by mid-morning we and 40-odd other travelers were there, seated in four large pangas and motoring slowly across the lagoon. At first, the lagoon seemed empty, the whales gone. But just as we'd decided the trip was a bust, a mottled hump silently broke the surface nearby. Then a second shiny wet back emerged with a calf by her side.

As the day warmed, so did the whales, rolling sideways to inspect us with one eye and "spy hopping" straight up between the pangas for 360-degree look-around. A few whales slid next to the panga, as if courting the touch of a human hand. Whales were everywhere, gently cruising, rising, breathing and diving.

Whaled out, we were ready for lunch by 1 o'clock, served at a local cafe that offered plates heaped with chicken enchiladas, tacos, rice, beans, chili verde, sliced mangoes and a fresh green salad, served with a soda or beer.

How much leeway does a ship captain have in a place like the Gulf, where the itinerary can be flexible, I wondered. Was the Magdalena Bay tour available on a day's notice?

"It's rarely a problem," said Russell. "That's what I like about out-of-the-way places like the Sea of Cortes. The big cruise ships depend on stopping at ports with facilities, the docks, tour buses, guide services and shops. They have to go where they're expected. But here in Baja we get to decide when and where to anchor and what to do that day.

It's the kind of flexibility that Un-Cruise cultivates. Three years ago, Un-Cruise Adventures was a minor player. A small Alaska-oriented outfit, its four ships sailed under two names: Inner Sea Discoveries (active expedition trips) and American Safari Cruises (luxury yachts). Growing was a someday topic that was never seriously pursued. Then Cruise West, Alaska's oldest and best-loved cruise line announced it was going out of business and selling its fleet of expedition-style ships.

"The vessels were already right there, in Alaska, and they came on the market at the right price," said Un-Cruise spokesperson Sarah Scoltock. "It was a matter of being in the right place at the right time."

When the purchase was complete, the company's fleet of ships, now sailing under the Un-Cruise Adventures logo, had doubled. So, too, had the number of cruise itineraries, each designed with the idea that independent travelers want to be active participants. "Comment cards and feedback say that our passengers want good food, a choice of wines and the little luxuries that matter," she said. "But they don't want to sit in the lounge and look out the window. They want to make their own adventure."

In the lonely Sea of Cortes, that goes without saying.

IF YOU GO:

THE ROUTES: Starting in December 2013, the 64-passenger Safari Voyager takes over the Safari Endeavour's Sea of Cortes routes, cruising year around. Seven-night roundtrip itineraries from San Jose del Cabo include "Baja's Whale Bounty," and "Cousteau's Aquarium of the World." The seven-night roundtrip cruise out Guaymas, mainland Mexico, focuses on the "Marine Miracles of Baja California." The 14-night one-way cruise between Guaymas and San Jose del Cabo explores the "Essential islands of Baja California North and South."

THREE CRUISE STYLES: Ships in the "Wilderness" category focus on active adventure. "Safari" designated ships offer soft adventure with a touch of luxury. The "Heritage" designation offers living history aboard ship and port-side.

RATES AND SERVICES: Cabins are priced per person double occupancy starting at $2995 in low season. Rates

Sign Up For Weekly Hot Deals

VACATION STARTER.com
Weekly Hot Deals!

CLICK HERE TO NEVER MISS A DEAL!
Register for our weekly HOT VACATION DEALS newsletter e-mailed directly to you. Our special offers can save you money on your dream vacation!

Search the Web's Largest Cruise Database

Destination	Caribbean/Bahamas	461 Sallings found
Cruise Line	All Cruise Lines
Month	Jan 2014	# of Days All Lengths
GO

Cruise Port Search Cruise from where you live
Advanced Search By port, ship, date range

Don't want to book online?
Call us at 1-866-381-5204

Vacation Starter's Featured Deals P/P from

	4 Day Caribbean • Constellation	$199
	5 Day Caribbean • Liberty/Seas	$279
	8 Day Bahamas • Splendor	$309
	7 Day Caribbean • Crown Princess	$399
	4 Day Bahamas • Disney Magic	$480
	9 Day Canary Islands • Norwegian Spirit	$299
	7 Day Caribbean • ms Westerdam	$399
	7 Day Alaska • Norwegian Sun	$549
	7 Day Mexico • Miracle	$559
	7 Day Alaska • Island Princess	$548
	7 Day Caribbean • Reflection	$549
	11 Day Mediterranean • Costa Pacifica	$569
	11 Day Australia/New Zealand • Voyager/Seas	$1,162
	12 Day Caribbean • Quest	$2,604
	10 Day Caribbean • Navigator	$4,449

include port fees and taxes, airport transfers, park entrance fees, sports equipment, guided hikes, yoga classes, a wellness program and all onboard guide services. Valid passports are required to enter Mexico. Call 888-862-8881 or visit <http://www.un-cruise.com>

(c)2013 McClatchy-Tribune News Service

Distributed by MCT Information Services

PHOTOS (from MCT Photo Service, 202-383-6099):

WLT-SEAOFCORTES

« Previous Story More Book my cruise | Find cruise deals | Latest cruise news on Vacation Starter Next Story »

- Ukraine's Balaklava Bay base designed to get in the last shot of World War III

- Re-imagined Disney Magic is the 'ultimate playground'

RECOMMENDED FOR YOU

Taking the kids to Niagara Falls, and 6 places you didn't know existed

Virgin America launches 'safety dance' video, while Delta goes for holiday humor

Looking for a room in New York? 10 new hotels, from frugal to spendy

Routehappy aims to put smile on passengers' faces

Newport News teen, father attacked after son's bike stolen

FROM AROUND THE WEB

Can't Believe They're Not 21 Yet! | Hollyscoop

\$3 Garage Sale Bowl Makes Family \$2 Million Richer | The Fiscal Times

List of Obamacare Premium Rates Across the US | iHealth Care Updates

15 Most Beautiful Women In Sports | Rant Sports

10 Black Teens Brutally Beat Up White Couple in Hate-Filled Attack | Tasty Articles

[\[what's this\]](#)

If your username is not shown below & you have submitted comments before on dailypress.com, (1) click here to login to your dailypress.com account, (2) submit your email and password info and (3) refresh the browser window (click the F5 key).

Login | Sign up

0 Comments

powered by:
viafoura

