

AP

Dinner at Betty's: Best of the Riviera Nayarit

By Anne Z. Cooke Tribune News Service (TNS) Mar 24, 2019 Updated 14 hrs ago

SAN BLAS, Mexico — Does your favorite celebrity chef spring to mind when you're feeling puckish, clicking through the channels and looking for a cooking show? No?

The name "Betty Vasquez" didn't ring my bell, either. But when I searched the internet for "Mexico famous chefs," I found her in San Blas, in the state of Nayarit, north of Puerto Vallarta.

Later on, when Steve, my husband, suggested that we spend one of our Puerto Vallarta vacation days driving north along the Riviera Nayarit, I agreed, as long as it included dinner at Betty's, in San Blas.

Until then, I hadn't realized that the border between the two states, Jalisco and Nayarit, is just north of the airport, at the Rio (river) Ameco. Beyond the border you're in wonderland, on one of Mexico's last, unspoiled tropical coasts.

Still a bit off the grid, it's a glorious refuge for wildlife, with hundreds of empty sand beaches, clear-water streams and mangrove swamps thick with birds, fish, crocodiles, small mammals and even linx-like cats.

Driving there we'd pass a dozen little villages, from Nuevo Vallarta and Flamingoes to Bucerias, Huanacastle, Punta Mita, Sayulita, San Francisco, Lo de Marcos, Guayabitos and Chacala, before ever reaching San Blas.

But it wasn't that far, according to Sonia, the concierge at our hotel, the Miraval, in Nuevo Vallarta. "San Blas is a three-hour drive, lots of curves, but scenic," she said.

"Take your toothbrush and stay overnight. Then you'll have time to stop along the way in Bucerias, Sayulita and San Pancho. Everybody swims in the ocean and you can get lunch."

We left Puerto Vallarta early the next morning heading north on Highway 200, following the coastline, passing miles of sandy shores and rolling waves, thrilled to be seeing something new.

Steve, who'd done some research, wondered whether San Blas, now a sleepy farm town, was the same port of call where, from the 16th century on, Spain's treasure ships, returning from the Philippines, first made landfall, stopping to take on fresh water.

Later, in 1767, when Spain decided to push her empire north, as far as Alaska, San Blas became an official naval port. It was here that Father Junipero Serra, the Spanish priest, and a company of soldiers embarked, sailing north to build California's missions.

Our first stop, in Buceritas, was just long enough to explore the expansive arts and crafts street market, on Lazaro Cardenas Avenue, and for a 10-minute swim in the ocean, a block away. As we were leaving, two friendly Canadians in bathing suits, there for the winter season, stopped to urge us to join them. "It's marvelous," they said.

The next stop was the Four Seasons and the W Hotel, for a look at each resort's very special lobby art, including paintings, pottery and Huichol beaded figures and murals.

A few miles on we reached Sayulita, an art colony and one of Mexico's historic "magic towns." With galleries, shops, cafes, coffee shops, cottages and sheds crowded onto every buildable inch, its cobblestone lanes were as boisterous as they were colorful. Joining mobs of shoppers, mostly Mexican vacationers, we found a beachside cafe and ordered ice tea.

Eventually we reached San Pancho — San Francisco, officially — a place I'll remember because we sat on the central plaza and watched the iguanas in a tree, then spotted a street artist who sold me a primitive painting. "My father paints all of these," he said, showing me a half-dozen different scenes. "He makes the paper, too."

Colored flags strung between the rooftops — a recent trend, it seems — led the way to the ocean and Las Palmas Restaurant on the beach, where we sat under an umbrella, watched the surfers and ordered lunch. Lingered over a platter with six kinds of tacos and a couple of pints, an hour ticked away before we noticed it. By the time we reached San Blas the sun was leaning westward, bathing the ocean in a silvery sheen.

As we circled the plaza, passing mothers pushing babies in strollers, old men playing checkers, and skinny kids chasing around the fountain, I caught a whiff of barbecued pork. A wave of nostalgia made my heart thump, and I felt like a fifth-grader again, traveling with my parents.

San Blas, I could see, wouldn't be on the average traveler's bucket list. But simplicity is its charm. If you've seen Alfonso Cuarón's film "Roma," a story of ordinary people coping with life in Mexico in the 1970s, you'll know what I mean.

As we pulled into the gas station, the attendant, a tall guy in cowboy boots, ambled over to man the pump.

"If you want to taste real Nayarit cooking," he said, spotting the tourist map on the dashboard, "try the Hotel Garza Canela, that way," he said, pointing toward the ocean. "They have a restaurant there, and a pool."

"Is that Betty Vasquez's restaurant?" He wasn't sure. Heading for the hotel, we booked a room for the night, and asked about the restaurant, the El Delfin.

"It's right there, across the patio," Rosa, behind the desk, said as she pointed the way.

Stepping outside I realized that we were behind a wall in a colonial-style hacienda, with leafy trees shading a spacious patio and garden with several other buildings and a swimming pool.

"My father loved those trees," said the lady at the restaurant door, her brown hair twisted into a bun. "He spent hours out there, weeding and watering. Come in, I'm Betty," she said smiling.

I was so thrilled to meet her that I grinned like an idiot, but she shook hands and looked pleased. "And you've come all this way, just to eat here?" she said. "I am so glad you're here," she said, showing us to a table.

"What do you think?" I asked Steve, after she'd donned an apron and disappeared into the kitchen. "Worth two stars?"

Twenty minutes later we compared our dinners. “This is delicious,” he said, sharing a taste of baked pork loin, with a fruit-and-chipotle sauce. “Is yours the curried shrimp?” he asked. “Am I tasting coconut milk?”

We were scanning the dessert menu when she returned with coffee, and since it was early and the restaurant was still empty, she sat down to talk.

“Tell me, will you be here long?” she said. “I loved Paris when I studied at the Cordon Bleu, but this is our family home. My roots are here. Do you have time to tour around? There’s a lot to see.”

I got out my pad and pen. “What else should we see?” Scribbling, I made a list. Visit the fort on San Basilio hill. Look out at the town and ocean view. See the big white rock. The Huichol people call it Tatei Haramara, the sea goddess. Walk through the old church, La Nuestra Senora del Rosario, near the fort. Swim at Las Islitas beach, on Matanchen Bay. Bring bug spray. Don’t miss the highlight, the naturalist-guided boat tour on Santiago River estuary in La Tovar National Park.

“You know,” she said, pausing to think, “Why don’t I show you around? I’m going out of town, but I’m free in the morning. We’re filming the next season of “MasterChef Mexico” and I have to be there. I’m one of the show’s three judges.”

After our tour with Betty, we took the guided boat ride through La Tovar’s estuary, with naturalist Francisco Garcia. Gliding from shadowy mangroves to sunlit freshwater pools, seeing rare birds and strange trees, was wonderful and enchanting.

Betty was right. The boat ride was almost as memorable as dinner at the El Delfin. And as always, the best adventure was the one I didn’t plan.

----

THE NITTY GRITTY

Touring the Riviera Nayarit: see www.rivieranayarit.com

Hotel Garza Canela, www.garzacanela.com: rooms or suites for up to six, US $90-$275.

Entrees at El Delfin restaurant: US $10-$25

Driving from Puerto Vallarta: National Hwy 200 North to signs to Tepic, then State 16 to Zacualpan and San Blas.

From Puerto Vallarta: 156 km., 79 miles, 3 hours by car

From Mazatlan: 283 km., 176 miles

From Guadalajara: 261 km., 162 miles, three hours by car

-----

Distributed by Tribune Content Agency, LLC.

-----

PHOTOS (for help with images, contact 312-222-4194): WLT-MEXICO-RIVIERA-NAYARIT

---

Copyright 2019 Tribune Content Agency.

Tags

Coastlines And Beaches

Environment And Nature

Hotels And Resorts

Accommodations

Travel

Lifestyle

Oceans

Painting

Visual Arts

Arts And Entertainment

Estuaries

Freshwater Biology

Biology

Science

Limnology

Environmental ScienceEnvironmentRestaurantsFood And DrinkAnimals

Locations

MexicoNorth AmericaCentral AmericaLatin America And Caribbean

 Load comments

Submit Your News

---

We're always interested in hearing about news in our community. Let us know what's going on!

Go to form

NEWSLETTER SIGNUP

Signup to receive our daily newsletters and get special offers delivered right to your inbox.

Click Here to Signup

Most Popular Stories

---

Virginia Tech defeats Liberty to reach Sweet 16

- 1
- 2 UVa men's basketball: Cavs smother Sooners' offensive attack, advance to Sweet 16
- 3 Ballad launches changes across newly merged hospital network
- 4 CREASY, Michelle
- 5 McFarling: How Sweet 16-bound UVa got its groove back

Special Sections

SWVA L

SWVA Living: Spring 2019

SWVA Living: Winter 2018

Local marketplace

The Great 611 Steak Company

Feb 4, 2019

THE TOWNES AT HIDDEN VALLEY | LUXURY LIVING COMMUNITY | ROANOKE, VA

Really? Patio Homes With Walk-Out Basements?

Aug 3, 2018

Really? Patio Homes With Walkout Basements? REALLY!

THE TOWNES
at
HIDDEN VALLEY

Want to design your new patio home to match your lifestyle? Check out the new walk-out basements in the "townes". Want a game room, exercise center, work shop, home theatre, extra bedroom with full bath and more?

Come take a look ... call 989-1535 to make an appointment to tour these and other home designs now available.

WORN OUT ROOFING?

$1,000 OFF
SCHEDULE NOW

COMMONWEALTH ROOFING SPECIALISTS, LLC

10 YEAR WORKMANSHIP WARRANTY
FREE ESTIMATES

COMMONWEALTH ROOFING SPECIALISTS LLC | ROOFING COMPANY
Commonwealth Roofing Specialists - $1,000 Off

May 16, 2018

WIRE HEADLINES

Norway opens probe into why cruise ship ventured into storm

Updated 51 min ago

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Norwegian officials have opened an investigation into why a cruises...

---

WIRE HEADLINES

Erdogan: Istanbul's Hagia Sophia could be turned into mosque

Updated 1 hr ago

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Istanbul's Hagia Sophia — a Byzantine-era cathedral that now serves as...

---

WIRE HEADLINES

Benatar, Etheridge added to Tanglewood summer lineup

Updated 1 hr ago

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — Pat Benatar & Neil Giraldo, Melissa Etheridge and Richard Thompson h...

---

WIRE HEADLINES

Mix-up: British Airways plane lands in Scotland, not Germany

1 hr ago

LONDON (AP) — The flight on Monday seemed to go perfectly well, until passengers realized th...

---

WIRE

5 must-haves for traveling on a plane

Updated 6 hrs ago

Packing for a vacation can be such an exciting experience — sometimes so exciting we forget ...

---

WIRE

The weekly geography quiz

Updated 6 hrs ago

GEOQUIZ: Milan and Venice, Italy, are at about the same latitude as what large city in easte...

---

WIRE

SeaDream will launch new ship for global sailing in 2021

Updated 6 hrs ago

MIAMI — Miami-based luxury cruise line SeaDream has ordered a new ship to expand into the ex...

---

WIRE

Mermaid School offering classes at Disney World

Updated 6 hrs ago

School may not be the first you think of when you plan your vacation at Walt Disney World.

---

WIRE

Royal Caribbean bets on millennial features with ship makeover

Updated 6 hrs ago

MIAMI — At first glance, Royal Caribbean's Navigator of the Seas may look like the same ship...

---

WIRE

Family travel five: Destinations for upcoming vacation

Updated 6 hrs ago

It's time to put a family vacation on the calendar. Here are five ideas to consider:

---

WIRE

[BC-MCT-TRAVEL-BJT]

Updated 6 hrs ago

(TNS)

---

WIRE

Renewing a lifelong love affair with Paris and London

Updated 14 hrs ago

My emotional attachment to Paris and London started early in life.

---

WIRE

In Fez, Morocco, an oasis amid the bedlam of the ancient medina

Updated 14 hrs ago

FEZ, Morocco — The sun was low over the souks, reflecting off the rust-colored hills, and my...

---

WIRE

The Latest: All Viking Sky passengers, crew safe; ship docks

Updated 15 hrs ago

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — The Latest on the Viking Sky cruise ship that was stranded off the ...

---

WIRE

1 hiker killed, 1 injured after avalanche in Swiss Alps

Updated 19 hrs ago

GENEVA (AP) — Swiss police say one hiker has died and another has been injured following an ...

---

WIRE

Average US price of gas jumps 16 cents per gallon, to $2.66

Updated 21 hrs ago

CAMARILLO, Calif. (AP) — The average U.S. price of regular-grade gasoline shot up 16 cents a...

---

WIRE

Viking Sky cruise ship reaches port in Norway after harrowing helicopter airlifts rescued half its passengers

Mar 24, 2019

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Viking Sky cruise ship reaches port in Norway after harrowing helic...

---

WIRE HEADLINES

Helicopters rescue Norway cruise ship passengers amid storm

Updated Mar 23, 2019

HELSINKI (AP) — Rescue workers off Norway's western coast rushed to evacuate 1,300 passenger...

---

WIRE

The Latest: 2nd ship needs rescue off Norway's western coast

Updated Mar 23, 2019

HELSINKI (AP) — The Latest on the Viking Sky cruise ship, which is having engine problems of...

---

WIRE

Ethiopian Airlines chief questions Max training requirements

Updated Mar 23, 2019

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The warning and training requirements set for the now-grounded ...

---

WIRE

Arizona stretch of I-10 will get dust-storm warning system

Updated Mar 23, 2019

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An Arizona project to provide travelers on Interstate 10 with timely wa...

---

WIRE

Police: Cruise ship off western Norway issues mayday call in heavy winds, 1,300 passengers are being evacuated

Mar 23, 2019

HELSINKI (AP) — Police: Cruise ship off western Norway issues mayday call in heavy winds, 1,...

---

WIRE

Dispute over refinery near national park heats up in court

Updated Mar 23, 2019

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Parties involved in a dispute over whether North Dakota regulators sho...

---

WIRE

AP PHOTOS: Romanian youth spin burning tires in Lent ritual

Updated Mar 23, 2019

POPLACA, Romania (AP) — Romanian children and youth spin burning tires and light fires in th...

---

Contests and Promotions

---

SWVA Living Reader's Choice 2019

Craft Beer Brew Deal Card

Sections

---

-  Home
- News
- Sports
- Business
- Weather
- Life & entertainment
- Smith Mountain Lake
- Opinion
- Video
- Photo
- Obituaries
- Classifieds

- SWVA Homes
- SWVA Cars

Services

---

- Advertise with us
- Contact us
- Submit news
- Buy photos & pages
- Email newsletters
- Subscribe/All Access
- Website problems
- Terms and Conditions
- Professional Standards and Content Policies
- Join our team

Follow Us

---

Contact Information

---

roanoke.com

201 Campbell Ave. S.W.

Roanoke, VA 24011

Phone: 800-346-1234

Email: customer@roanoke.com

Roanoke Times, Roanoke, VA ©2019 BH Media Group, Inc. | Terms of Use | Privacy Policy | This website is intended for U.S. residents only.